Well, hello and welcome to Success Left a Clue, the weekly podcast where I, your host, Robert Raymond Riopel, bring you those clues from around the world that I learn as I travel inspiring people and I put them into everyday lessons for you the audience. This is the Success Left a Clue Episode Number 75. And today, we're gonna do something that I haven't done in a little bit of time and I'm so excited to be able to do it again because it just, it does, it taps into my passion. And for those of you who are regular listeners of this podcast, you've probably been wondering, why it has been so long since I did this, why it has been so long since I've used a song as the theme for the lesson this week.

Well, I can only take on the responsibility it has been on me. I own that. I apologize for that. And I will now rectify that by using a song today. So today we have a song that's going to be the lesson, the theme for what we're talking about. And so, without further ado, listen in and I will be right back with you once it is played.

Alright. For those of you who do not recognize, that is by the one and only Dolly Parton, working 9 to 5. And that is the total theme for today. Let's kind of go back to when I started this podcast well over a year ago now. I had inspirations. I had mentors. I had people that I looked up to. And in the early podcast, even did an interview with one of these gentlemen who was a mentor and I haven't mentioned him a while. But he's definitely, this lesson really kicks in from something he taught me and I heard on his podcast and that's why the song came to me.

And so, I want to give a shout out to Mr. Ken Courtright. The guy is phenomenal. What he teaches, what he does, how he inspires people, love it. And one of the things that he taught me was 9 to 5 is how you earn a living. And it's what you do from 5 till 9 that will give you a life that will earn you a life. Let me say that again. So 9 to 5, just like Dolly Parton says in her song, working 9 to 5, what a way to make a living. I'm just getting by. So I'll take in no giving. And it is how the rich man, the boss man, you're doing everything for them.

So if you are in a job or even if you're in your business that 9 to 5, what you're doing that time frame, that's what you were doing to make that living. The question is what do you want to do to really create that life that you want, the life that you have in mind for you and your family and that's the 5 to 9. An extra few hours a day. Yes, you may be tired. Yes, you may be worn out. Yes, you may not feel like it. But you don't let that stop you. It goes back to episode number 73, the rituals of success. This is what you now get in the ritual of taking that time.

And yesterday, I know ladies and gentleman, all of us who works in the actual 9 to 5 anymore, it is kind of something that is from old school old days, I got it, I understand. I hear what you're saying. But what I'm talking about is so I don't care if you work 8, 10, 12 hours working night shift. When you get home, when you have time, do you automatically sit down and just flop yourself in front of a TV? Or, are you doing something, are you incorporating from episode number seventy four, that 30 minutes a day, 5 days a week, part-time business of managing and investing your money. That could be one of the things you are doing from 5 to 9 to be able to move towards a life of your dreams.

That's the key. That is what you got to ask yourself. What are you willing to do? Think long term and I will go back to another quote, one of the quotes I love that comes from T. Harv Eker, secrets of the millionaire mind he say, "Rich people think long term. Poor people think short term." Short term, they want the instant gratification. Give it to me now. Whereas, rich people think long term. What are you willing to do today? Maybe it is a short term sacrifice. Maybe, you know what? Let me back up on that one. I am not even going to use the word sacrifice because to me, that word is overused. It is what are you willing to do to go towards your goals, your dreams, and your passions. So to me, that's not a sacrifice. That is being willing to put in, that mastering what you want to do, mastering where you want to go.

So it is not a sacrifice. It is just what is, is. So going back to that, are you thinking long term, what are you willing to do today? See successful people are willing to do what the unsuccessful people aren't. They are willing to put that little x, work in that 5 to 9 and maybe part of that time is spending quality time with your family so that you're not the subconsciously beating yourself up because you didn't spend time with them. You're not taking yourself out because successful people lose their families, successful people get alienated from their families. That is just a belief. And if you believe that to be true, that is exactly what you are going to manifest.

So what do you do from 5 to 9? Maybe that is where you have quality time with a family or parts of it with one on one with individual family members. Then part of it is where you do that little bit of extra work to learn something, put something into practice, train yourself, really, really do what you want to do or what needs to be done to get you where you want to go. So 9 to 5 is how you are going to earn living, and most people barely it is what you do from that 5 to 9 that is going to get you the life you want.

And again, I am going to do that extra shout out to Ken Courtright. I wanna thank you for that lesson. Although I was doing it in a lot of my life, I never understood it. I never got it until I heard him put it into the words so eloquently. That's the key right there. Do you have those metrics? Let us go back to another episode I recorded a long time ago, 3, 2, 1, rich. Always have at least three coaches in your life, 2 mentors and be part of one mastermind. That is how you become rich in all areas of life my friends.

And so if you can tell them a little bit passion about this, I have no fun with it whatsoever, but it is what I love to do. So with that, let's wrap this up. Working nine to five, what a way to make a living. So yeah, I got it. That's what you do from that 5 to 9, those extra few hours a day that will give you the life of your dreams. So remember, always live with passion and go for those dreams and be willing to do whatever it takes. Till next time. Have an awesome day. Thanks everyone.
